

Hello, and welcome to the BSL clan site. We are a friendly group that likes to talk and play the game for fun. Enjoyment is important. The BSL site also hosts material for our good neighbours, OEM. We don't have huge requirements for our clan members in-game, but some:

<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• We require you to read, understand, and agree the BSL Code</li></ul>
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• One silver alt may be a member in addition to a main account, but all the requirements for accounts are the same. the requirements for cities may be met by any city or averaged across multiple cities.</li></ul>
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• We also ask that you communicate with us. It's best to use clan chat. Say hello, get to know people, get support, help, tips and share ideas. Communicating means that we know you are part of the clan and taking part. It helps us all to have a better game experience. Please don't ignore messages. They are generally important. This is a friendly clan.</li></ul>
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• We'll be allocating you a contact person for help with getting settled in and you will be told the locations of all our special clan chats if you are joining us. These include tournament and resource info, suggestions, but the bulk of the information will be here</li></ul>
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• We ask that clan members avoid using bad language on the chats, including clan chat, but restrict it to the Irish Pub chat on the game site which you can choose to join. Please be aware that not everyone will have the same expectations about coarse language and adult themes, so we restrict those to that chat.</li></ul>

Our Officers and Superiors are all approachable and happy to help with problems if they can. The objective is not, realistically, to compete in might with the massive clans in the game, but to maintain an independent identity and enjoy the struggle! We are BSL, and we do not yield.